

Swan Decoy Leads Record $3.4 Million Winter Sale For Copley

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Timed to coincide with the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition in Charleston, Copley Fine Art's February 15 auction was the company's best Winter Sale yet, securing a record $3.4 million on 535 lots offered. Top honors went, at $210,000 including premium, to a graceful swan decoy with a swooping neck and the stamp of renowned collector William Mackey on its underside. The price for the circa 1920 sculpture set a new benchmark for Virginia carver Charles Birch (1867-1956). The Mackey-Birch Swan, as it is known, most recently belonged to Dr. Peter J. Muller Jr, the late Georgia veterinarian whose collection headlined the Copley event. "Bidders were energized and excited. Including various owners, we were 95 percent sold by lot," said Copley chairman and chief executive officer Stephen B. O'Brien Jr.

Asia Week New York Gallery Exhibitions & Events Will Move Forward As Scheduled

NEW YORK CITY — The Asia Week New York Association has announced that 37 of its gallery exhibitions, 17 gallery talks and events will take place as scheduled on March 12-19. However, due to the coronavirus outbreak, their auction house partners — Bonhams, Christie's, Doyle, Heritage and Sotheby's — will reschedule the majority of their March Asian art auctions and related events to take place the week of June 22.

Said Katherine Martin, chairman of Asia Week New York: "Due to the tragic coronavirus outbreak and the effect it's had on so many people, we understand the difficult decision that the auction houses had to make to respectfully accommodate their buyers. Our dealers will still present their exhibitions, which are free and open to the public, and maintain their schedule of gallery talks and receptions throughout the week."

According to Martin, managing director of Scholten Japanese Art, Christie's and Sotheby's will still present their South Asian Modern and contemporary sales. Highlights from the New York auctions will be on view at the six auction houses as originally planned during Asia Week New York.
